A History Of Broken Promises

The recent statement from the U.S. State Department, expressing a commitment to stand "shoulder to shoulder" with Pakistan in combating terrorism, might seem like a reassuring gesture to some. However, seasoned observers of U.S.-Pakistan relations know better. This is not the first time Washington has made grand promises of support, only to later withdraw when the geopolitical winds shift. For the current Pakistani government, the Biden administration's latest rhetoric should be a reminder that they've been down this road before—repeatedly.

History is replete with instances where the U.S. has alternated between treating Pakistan as a critical ally and viewing it with suspicion. The relationship has often been characterized by a "hot and cold" dynamic, with periods of intense cooperation followed by abrupt distancing. Pakistan's strategic location has made it a valuable partner for the U.S., but this partnership has rarely been one of equals. The U.S. has often prioritized its own interests, with little regard for the long-term stability or security of Pakistan.

The Biden administration, widely seen as a lame duck due to its dwindling domestic support and international credibility, offers little assurance that things will be different this time. While the State Department spokesperson's words may seem comforting in the face of rising terrorism, they ring hollow against the backdrop of history. Pakistan must approach this latest U.S. overture with caution and a clear-eyed understanding that Washington's promises have often been as fleeting as they are fervent.

Ultimately, Pakistan's fight against terrorism is its own. The U.S. can offer words of support, but true security will come from within—through policies and partnerships that put Pakistan's interests first, not those of a faraway ally with a record of unreliability.

Sujawal's Rural Areas Still Flooded With Rainwater

Pakistan Hits Rock Bottom in Test Rankings, Worst Since 1965

DUBAI: Shan Masood-led Pakistan succumbed to a historic series defeat against Bangladesh, leading to their fall to their lowest ICC Men's Test Team Rankings since 1965.

Bangladesh outclassed Pakistan by six wickets in the second Test match to complete the clean sweep and win their first-ever series against the Green Shirts. The touring side had won the first Test thumpingly by 10 wickets.

The back-to-back losses against Bangladesh resulted in Pakistan dropping two places to eighth with 66 rating points.

"This is the lowest rating points Pakistan have had in the Test rankings table since 1965, barring a brief period where they did not have a place in the rankings due to an insufficient number of matches," the ICC press release stated.

Meanwhile, Bangladesh gained 13 rating points, however, they are still sitting in the ninth position behind Pakistan in the ICC Men's Test Team Rankings.

Due to Pakistan's decline in the rankings, Sri Lanka and West Indies have both advanced one position to claim sixth and seventh place, respectively.

"Extremely disappointed, we were excited for the home season but the story has been the same as Australia," Pakistan skipper Shan Masood said after the loss in the second Test to Bangladesh. "We have not learnt our lessons. We thought we were playing good cricket in Australia but not doing the job, that's something we need to work on."—Agency

Babar Azam Plummets Out of Top 10 Test Batsmen

LAHORE: Star batsman Babar Azam has ostensibly lost the shine for which he was admired across the world as he has slipped out of the top 10 list in ICC men's Test batmen ranking, for the first time in more than four and a half years.

The former captain has dropped to No.12 with 712 points after losing three places as he seems to be in a lackluster form.

It can be established through the fact as well that the 29-year-old has not hit a half-century during his last 16 innings in Test format, while he scored 64 runs only across four innings at the home ground in the recently concluded two-match Test series against Bangladesh.

Mohammad Rizwan is the only Pakistani batter retaining a spot in top 10 that too on the edge at 10th position.

The third Green Shirts batsman that can be spotted among top 20 batters is Saud Shakil at 20th position. The middle-order batsman has plummeted by seven places from 13. Whereas, Salman Ali Agha moved nine spots up to reach 31 from 40.

On the other hand, after two back-to-back hundreds in the second Test against Sri Lanka, Joe Root's incredible batting has pushed the English batsman on the ICC Test Batter Rankings' lead position.

With 63 rating points between Root and Kane Williamson of New Zealand, Root (922 rating points) has the advantage and can surpass his own record. He is only one rating point away from the 923 rating he achieved in July 2022 at Edgbaston following a century against India.

Len Hutton, Jack Hobbs, and Peter May are the only three English batters with higher career rating among Test batsmen.

Even though Root had several impressive performances in the second Test match against Sri Lanka, Gus Atkinson was the player of the match for his all-round performance.

The ICC said after becoming just the third player in Men's Test history to score a century and claim a five-wicket haul at the hallowed venue, Atkinson moved up 48 spots, into the top 20 for All-Rounders, and into the top 30 for bowlers.—Agency

LAHORE: The Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB) has decided against showing leniency towards players in the lead-up to the series against England.

Following a disappointing performance against Bangladesh, the PCB is tightening its grip on player fitness and performance standards.

The decision comes as part of a broader strategy to address concerns over the team's recent form.

The PCB Chairman, Mohsin Naqvi, was unable to undergo a planned surgery, and the visiting Bangladesh team has departed after a standout performance that has raised alarms within the PCB.

In preparation for the England series, the PCB has scheduled rigorous fitness tests for players on September 7 and 9 in Lahore.

All cricketers on central contracts will be required to participate, particularly those who missed earlier regional fitness evaluations.

The tests will include a two-kilometre run within eight minutes and additional sprint drills, with stricter criteria in place compared to previous assessments.

The PCB is also planning to announce new central contracts before the series.

However, there will be no increase in contract fees.

Instead, player categories will be adjusted based on fitness test results and recent performance, reflecting the board's focus on improving the team's overall standards.—Agency

PCB Cracks Down on High-Stakes England Series

LAHORE: Former Pakistan captain Sarfaraz Ahmed has disclosed his future as a player after being named as the mentor of the Dolphins side for the Champions One-Day Cup, which is scheduled to be held in Faisalabad from 12-29 September.

Out of the five mentors announced for the Champions Cup, Sarfaraz is the most active Pakistan player. The 37-year-old described this as a great learning opportunity for him and confirmed that he would be available for domestic and international duties.

"This is a great opportunity for me. It's also a chance for me to learn. I will strive to bring forward good players who can represent Pakistan," he said in a presser.

"I will be available for the Pakistan team. When I will have domestic duties, I will fulfil them. Whenever I am selected, I will be available."

"With time, everything will fall into place. Right now, I feel I can still play. I will continue to play as long as I can," he added.

Pakistan recently slumped to a 2-0 Test series defeat to Bangladesh and Sarfaraz has asked fans to support.

"My message to the fans is that this Pakistan team will make a comeback. Support your players. Support your players in the Champions Cup."

Sarfaraz revealed how he picked his side for the forthcoming competition.

"I have selected the team while working closely. We have chosen players from a draft of 150 players."

"We will focus on the development of U19 players and with my experience, we will try to bring forward good players."

"In just twelve to fourteen days, it's not possible to fix everything. What's done is done, but we will now try to set Pakistan cricket on the right path," he added.—Agency

Sarfaraz Ahmed Breaks Silence on Future After Taking Champions Cup Role

KARACHI: Legendary Pakistan cricketers including Javed Miandad and Inzamam-ul-Haq reacted to the national men's team's first-ever Test series defeat against Bangladesh.

The Green Shirts succumbed to a 2-0 loss in the two-match series against Bangladesh, which culminated at the Pindi Cricket Stadium on Tuesday.

Bangladesh outclassed Pakistan by six wickets in the second Test to complete the clean sweep. The touring side had won the first Test thumpingly by 10 wickets.

Former Test captain Javed Miandad, known for his blunt remarks, expressed his disappointment specifically with the team's batting woes while lauding the touring side for their disciplined performances.

"It is hurting that our cricket has come to this stage. Bangladesh deserve credit for their disciplined performances. But the way our batting has collapsed in this series is a bad sign," said Miandad.

Another former Pakistan captain Inzamam-ul-Haq expressed his concerns over the team's struggle in home conditions.

"Home series were always considered our best chance of beating the best sides in the past. But for this to happen the batsmen need to get runs," Inzamam said.

Pakistan's leading century-scorer in Test cricket Younis Khan emphasized that the national players need mental strengthening to overcome the losing streak at home.

"Our batters have got runs in the past but right now I think they need mental strengthening and a clear mind to overcome this crisis," stated Younis.

Former Pakistan Test spinner Iqbal Qasim, on the other hand, asserted that the national team needs to improve in the spin-bowling department, highlighting that the national team does not feature great pacers like Wasim Akram.—Agency

Miandad, Inzamam React in Shock to Pakistan's Historic Loss to Bangladesh

LAHORE: The Pakistan Hockey Federation (PHF) brought in Dutch coach Roelant Oltmans to guide the national side. However, despite his expertise, Oltmans refused to continue due to the PHF's failure to offer him a long-term contract.

The federation had only been compensating him on an event-by-event basis, and financial difficulties were cited as the reason for not securing a more stable arrangement.

With Oltmans out of the picture, former Olympian and ex-captain Tahir Zaman was quickly appointed head coach. Tahir, who previously coached Pakistan, is no stranger to the role but has yet to lead the team to any major victories.

Despite limited preparation time, as Tahir will only have three days to work with the squad before the tournament kicks off, the PHF saw him as the most convenient option given the circumstances.

The PHF's financial woes have further complicated the team's preparations. The federation even faced challenges in covering travel costs for the China tour, underscoring the financial strain that prevented a long-term deal with Oltmans.

Moreover, key players such as Abdul Rehman Jr, Ahtisham Aslam, and Mur-taza Yaqoob are unavailable, as they are committed to European leagues, while Arbaz Ahmed withdrew due to personal reasons.—Agency

Katy Perry Stands Firm: Defends Controversial Collaborator

Katy Perry and Dr. Luke have a history of belting hit tracks, and they also worked on her latest album, 143. However, there is one problem.

It has to do with the record producer as he faced accusations of sexually abusing the rockstar Kesha.

Though the parties settled the matter last year, the backlash against the California Gurls singer was intense for giving him a platform.

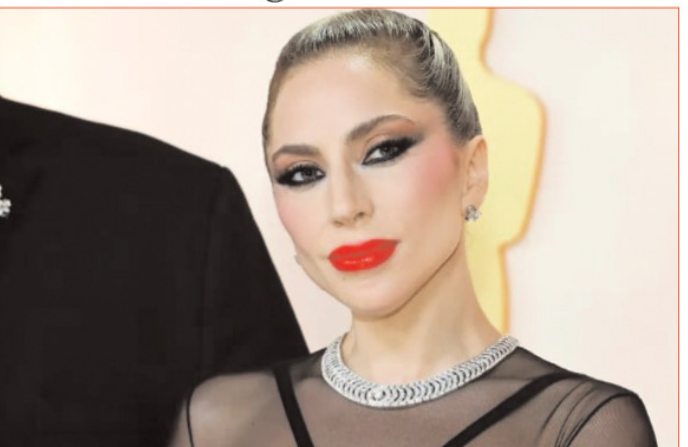

Defending her choice, the Grammy-nominated singer said on Call Her Daddy podcast, "I understand that it started a lot of conversations and he was one of many collaborators that I collaborated with. But the reality is, it comes from."

She continued without taking the controversial artist's name, "The truth is, I wrote these songs from my experience of my whole life going through this metamorphosis, and he was one of the people to help facilitate all that. One of the writers, one of the producers. I am speaking from my own experience."

Katy further claimed she collected her experience and melted into the song, "When I speak about 'Woman's World,' I speak about feeling so empowered now."

"As a mother, as a woman, giving birth, creating life, creating another set of organs. A brain! A heart! I created a whole  heart! And I did it, and I'm still doing it."

Lady Gaga, originally named Stefani Germanotta, got candid about her decision to move into the acting industry.

While speaking at the Venice Film Festival, the singing sensation explained why she decided to make a career switch after making her mark in the music industry for decades, as per Hollywood Reporter.

She kicked off the chat by saying, "The reason I started making music when I was really little was because I just had something to say, and trying to figure out how to do that."

Lady also revealed, "One of the reasons I love music and I love movies so much is the stories that you get to tell," adding, "and the way that we get to express something to the world that will hopefully help people feel good about life and give them a moment to escape into another world to fall into somebody else's story."

It is pertinent to mention here that Lady Gaga will star as Harley Quinn, in the highly anticipated flick, Joker: Folie à Deux.

"I think that what I really meant to say is that I believe that movies have a tremendous power to change the way people feel, and that's part of why I love to create," she remarked before moving on to the next topic.

SSGC Disconnects Over 3,000 Illegal Gas Connections In Sindh And Balochistan

KARACHI: The Sui Southern Gas Company Ltd. (SSGC) has intensified its efforts to reduce unaccounted for gas (UFG) by actively targeting gas theft, a persistent issue affecting society. KCCI Calls On State Bank To Cut Policy Rate By 500 Basis Points

KARACHI: The Karachi Chamber of Commerce & Industry (KCCI) has called on the State Bank of Pakistan (SBP) to reduce the policy rate by 500 basis points, lowering it from 19.5% to 14.5% in the next monetary policy statement. KCCI Chairman Zubair Motiwala and President Iftekhar Ahmed Sheikh emphasized that with inflation dropping to 9.6% in August, its lowest in three years, there is a strong justification for a significant rate cut to stimulate economic growth. They highlighted that the Large-Scale Manufacturing Index (LSMI) showed marginal growth of just 0.9% in FY24, underlining the negative impact of prolonged high-interest rates. The policy rate reduction, they argued, would provide much-needed relief to the manufacturing sector and boost economic activity by encouraging private sector borrowing and investment.

Motiwala noted that Pakistan's real interest rate, currently at 9.9%, is much higher than in neighboring countries, reducing the nation's regional competitiveness. He also pointed out that a 1% reduction in the policy rate could save the government approximately Rs467 billion in debt servicing costs. Sheikh added that despite a sharp increase in the policy rate from 7% in August 2021 to 22% by May 2023, inflation was not effectively controlled, suggesting that alternative monetary tools should be considered. He further noted that the government's share of total credit has risen significantly, crowding out the private sector. A reduction in the policy rate, he argued, would help rebalance credit distribution towards the private sector. The KCCI leadership expressed hope that the SBP would announce the recommended rate cut, which would provide essential relief to businesses struggling with the high cost of doing business.—RT

He noted that elderly people who have been suffering for years must be curing the authorities. He emphasized that if the police had worked honestly, the issue of missing persons would have been resolved by now. He criticized the inability to determine who was responsible for the disappearances and warned that poor performance could lead officials into jail prison. During the proceedings, Justice Phulpoto reprimanded the DSP of Pakistan Bazaar police station. The court has summoned the head of the JIT for the next hearing and directed effective measures for the recovery of missing citizens, including Syed Arif and Syed Abbas Shah.
