Haji Ali Hassan Zardari Highlights Major Development Projects In District Thatta

By Khuda Bux Brohi

THATTA: Provincial Minister for Works, Services, and Jails, Haji Ali Hassan Zardari, proudly showcased the extensive development and public welfare projects executed in District Thatta under his leadership and the Pakistan People's Party (PPP), in collaboration with the Sindh government.

Speaking to journalists in Thatta, Zardari emphasized that the district has witnessed unprecedented progress compared to other regions, with residents being firsthand witnesses to these advancements. Zardari outlined a series of mega projects that have been successfully completed in the district, including the construction of roads, hospitals, schools, drainage systems, and clean water schemes. Many of these projects were completed within his own constituency, bringing significant improvements to the quality of life for local residents. He further noted that, in comparison, only 50% of similar development projects had been accomplished in Shaheed Benazirabad (Nawabshah), attributing the slow progress in other districts to the absence of strong political representation.

Among the key infrastructure achievements, Zardari highlighted the swift completion of roads from Thatta and Ghoro Barrage to Keti Bunder, which have enhanced connectivity and economic opportunities for coastal communities. Additionally, the strengthening of the Adero Canal has ensured a reliable water supply for both agricultural and drinking purposes, significantly benefiting the region's farmers and residents in coastal areas. He also discussed the revamping of drainage systems in key cities like Keti Bunder, Baghan, Lal Gohari, and War, where previously neglected streets have been upgraded with paver blocks, improving the urban environment and reducing flooding risks. Zardari proudly announced the impending opening of the Taluka Hospital Ghoro Bari, a long-awaited healthcare facility that will offer affordable medical services to residents of the coastal belt. He also celebrated the completion of the Thatta-Jhampir road, a billion-ruppee project, which has brought relief to residents of Kohistan and

Kotri Protests Erupt Over Water Shortage And Tanker Mafia Exploitation

By Sheikh Sinhi

KOTRI: Residents of the twelve wards of Bholhari under the Kotri Site Municipal Committee have launched a significant protest against the persistent shortage of drinking water and the exploitation by the tanker mafia, organized by the Pakistan Youth Movement. The demonstrators, including prominent activists Abdul Sattar Lahar and Shehbaz Memon, gathered to voice their frustration over the municipal committee's failure to ensure a consistent water supply.

During the protest, speakers highlighted that the municipal committee has cut off the water supply to numerous colonies in Bholhari, forcing residents to rely on the tanker mafia for their daily water needs. They accused the administration of complicity in this issue, alleging that officials are accepting hefty bribes to favor the tanker mafia, which is selling water at increasingly inflated prices. As a result, many working-class families are struggling to access basic water facilities, severely impacting their quality of life. The protesters expressed their discontent with the municipal committee's inaction, emphasizing that while the administration has historically provided free water delivery to homes through pipelines, the current situation reflects a blatant disregard for residents' needs. They warned that if elected representatives and the district administration do not take immediate steps to restore water supply through existing pipelines in the twelve wards of Bholhari, they will escalate their protests. The demonstrators vowed to widen the scope of their protests, indicating that they would mobilize greater support from the community and potentially engage in more disruptive actions if their demands for equitable water access are not met promptly. The situation remains tense as residents call for urgent governmental intervention to resolve the water crisis and dismantle the exploitative practices of the tanker mafia.

Jamaat-e-Islami Tando Adam Organizes Seerat-Un-Nabi (SAWW) Conference, Highlights Islamic Teachings And Social Justice

By Mumtaz Ali Thahim

TANDO ADAM: Jamaat-e-Islami Tando Adam held a profound Seerat-un-Nabi (SAWW) conference in Joharabad, where Deputy Secretary of Jamaat-e-Islami Sindh, Moulana Abdul Quddus Ahmadani, underscored the timeless message of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) as a beacon of mercy for all of humanity. In his address, Moulana Ahmadani emphasized the importance of embodying the Prophet's character in daily life, asserting that true success lies in following the teachings of Islam both in this world and the hereafter.

Speaking to a large gathering, Moulana Ahmadani reiterated that the finality of Prophethood was completed with Prophet Muhammad (PBUH), and no new prophet will come until the Day of Judgment. He urged the Muslim community to spread the Prophet's message, encouraging people to transition from servitude to man-made systems toward obedience to Allah and His Messenger. Reflecting on the state of the country, Moulana Ahmadani expressed grave concern over the erosion of jus-ice and merit in society. He pointed out that issues like corruption, drug abuse, and violence have escalated due to the widespread neglect of Islamic values and the teachings of the Holy Quran. He also criticized the global silence on the suffering of Muslims, particularly Palestinians, condemning the lack of vocal support from Islamic nations in the face of ongoing human rights violations. In his speech, Moulana Ahmadani reiterated Jamaat-e-Islami's firm stance against sectarianism and corruption, lauding the leadership of Hafiz Naeem-ur-Rehman for his relentless efforts to safeguard the rights of the people. He contrasted the Jamaat's commitment to justice with other political entities that, he argued, continue to exploit the public through unjust taxation and self-serving political maneuvering. He concluded by calling on the public to join Jamaat-e-Islami's membership campaign, encouraging unity in the fight against oppression and to work collectively for justice, equality, and the rights of the people.

atives, demonstrating a lack of urgency and concern for the welfare of the dismissed workers, which has led to growing distress and hardship in their households. The People's Labor Bureau has urgently called upon several authorities, including Sindh Chief Minister Syed Murad Ali Shah, Sindh Labor Minister Shahid Abdul Salam Thahim, the Regional Director of Labor Hyderabad, and the Deputy Commissioner and SSP Jamshoro, to take immediate action on the matter. They emphasized that the reinstatement of the security workers should be treated as a priority. In a firm stance, the People's Labor Bureau District Jamshoro announced that as of October 2, 2024, if the situation remains unresolved, they will establish a protest camp outside Rafhan Maze Company Limited's gates. They warned that any escalation of violence or disruption in company operations would be the responsibility of the Rafhan Maze Company administration, holding them accountable for any untoward incidents that may ensue.

Ibrahim Aziz Hungoro instructed Shahzad that the workers must either be reinstated to their original positions or receive their legal dues, including unemployment benefits and gratuity. However, the Rafhan Maze Company administration has yet to respond to these direc-tioned sealing and substantial fines. The Deputy Commissioner further stated that ISO-certified mill owners must provide payments to farmers according to their preference, either through cash or cheque. He reaffirmed the importance of agriculture as the backbone of the country's economy, stressing that the administration is committed to ensuring that no farmer suffers due to unfair practices. By Raja Zafar Iqbal

BADIN: The People's Party of Badin, led by District Information Secretary Fida Hussain Mandru, has vehemently rejected the federal government's amendment of the Irsa Act and the proposed construction of six illegal canals in the Indus River. During a press conference held at the Badin Press Club, Mandru emphasized the party's long-standing commitment to safeguarding the rights of Sindh and its residents, stating that any obstruction to Sindh's water supply would not be tolerated. Alongside notable figures such as Haji Hanif Khakhsheli, Ghulam Mustafa Jar, Al Asti, and Abdul Ghani Ansari, Mandru outlined the People's Party's historical struggle against policies perceived as anti-Sindh. He reminded attendees of the sacrifices made by leaders like Shaheed Zulfiqar Ali Bhutto and Shaheed Benazir Bhutto for the restoration of democracy, constitutional supremacy, and parliamentary integrity in Pakistan. He pointed out that the People's Party has consistently protested against projects such as the Kala Bagh Dam, Thal Canal, and Chashma Canal, which they view as detrimental to Sindh's water resources. Mandru reiterated that the party was quick to respond to the recent attempts to amend the Irsa Act, with the President of the PPP Sindh, Nisar Ahmad Khoro, endorsing a resolution against these amendments in the Sindh Assembly. Furthermore, the party's Information Secretary Uzam Dhamra highlighted a province-wide media campaign to voice strong opposition to the amendment and the illegal canals being constructed in the Indus River. The leaders underscored that the criticism aimed at the People's Party by an alliance of political factions is merely an attempt to gain media attention and score political points. Mandru and his colleagues firmly stated that the Sindh government, under the People's Party, would not permit any reduction in the water flow from the Indus River. In a show of unity and resolve, Mandru stated that Chief Minister Syed Murad Ali Shah, along with PPP members and workers, are actively voicing their opposition on every possible platform. He warned that if the federal government persists with its anti-Sindh measures, the People's Party is prepared to launch widespread protests across Sindh to mobilize public sentiment against these initiatives. The press conference concluded with a strong message of resilience from the People's Party, reaffirming their commitment to protect the rights and resources of the people of Sindh.

KP Government To Pursue Legal Action Against Police Crackdown On PTI Protest In Rawalpindi

RAWALPINDI/PE-SHAWAR: The Khyber Pakhtunkhwa government on Sunday announced to take legal action over clashes between Punjab police and Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) workers during its protest in Rawalpindi for which cases have been registered against dozens of party leaders.

"The government had planned a Model Town-like tragedy yesterday. [Our] workers were [subjected] to straight firing [and] our women [workers] were shelled upon," said Adviser to Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Chief Minister on Information Minister Mohammad Ali Saif.

The former ruling party had announced holding a demonstration in the city, however, the Punjab government had then imposed Section 144 banning all political gatherings, sit-ins, rallies, protests and similar activities.

The spokesperson's statement comes after the Imran Khan-founded party "called off" its protest in Rawalpindi due to violent clashes between police and workers on Saturday.

With PTI workers attempting to head towards the Liaquat Bagh, the police had resorted to teargas shelling to disperse the crowd which was then retaliated by party activists who started hurling stones and glass bottles at the law enforcers.

Punjab Government Seeks Three-Month Extension Of Section 144

LAHORE: The Punjab government presented an amendment bill in the provincial assembly which would allow the imposition of Section 144 for a minimum of three months, media reported on Sunday.

Punjab Minister for Finance Mujtaba Shuja-ur-Rehman presented the Code of Criminal Procedure (Punjab Amendment) Act 2024, which seeks to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898, in the Punjab Assembly on September 5.

Currently, the law allows the provincial government to impose Section 144 for a maximum of two days, extendable to seven days, unless there is a threat to human life, health, or safety.

However, the proposed amendment would empower the deputy commissioner (DC) to enforce a ban on public gatherings for up to 30 days, while the secretary of the Home Department could impose the ban for as long as 90 days. The current law grants the power to impose Section 144 to the office of the mayor (or zila nazim), who acts on a written recommendation from the police. The amendments, however, propose transferring this authority to the deputy commissioner or the secretary of the Home Department, while removing the requirement for a police recommendation. Mujtaba, who tabled the bill, told media that the amendments were introduced after approval from the provincial cabinet. He said that the period of restriction under Section 144 has been extended because "it is neither desirable nor practicable to seek prior approval of the provincial cabinet each time such a ban needs to be imposed in any district of Punjab." "The proposed amendments have been introduced to address grave and emergent situations that are likely to endanger public peace and order. They are intended to prevent imminent breaches of peace and provide a preventive jurisdiction and speedy remedy in the public interest," the minister argued. For now, the bill, has been referred to a committee of the Punjab Assembly. It is also important to note that violating Section 144 makes individuals liable for prosecution, with penalties ranging from one to six months' imprisonment. A 2022 report by the Human Rights Commission of Pakistan, titled "Freedom of Peaceful Assembly in Pakistan", referred to Section 144 as an "unchecked authority", enabling the provincial government and administration to "ban assemblies on virtually any pretext for extended periods"—RT/Agency

Spin or Substance?

Once again, Pakistan's economy finds itself under the stewardship of yet another finance minister trying to reassure a weary nation. Finance Minister Muhammad Aurangzeb has boldly proclaimed that the current IMF programme will be the country's last, signaling a push toward a "homegrown" reform agenda. His message, laden with talk of tax reforms, climate financing, and a shift toward an export-led economy, strikes all the right chords. Yet, it feels all too familiar—another politician promising transformative change, another set of "tough decisions" with no guarantee of execution.

Pakistanis have heard this rhetoric before. The nation has been through 24 IMF programmes since 1950, each one promising to be the last, and each one failing to deliver the sustained growth and stability that was envisioned. The bitter truth is that no economic reform, no matter how well-conceived, can succeed without political stability and genuine accountability. Without these, the economy remains a ship adrift, vulnerable to shocks, and reliant on international lenders to stay afloat.

Moreover, the current government's credibility is questionable at best. Decades of failed policies and broken promises have eroded public trust. The citizens are tired of hearing that better days are just around the corner while they struggle with inflation, unemployment, and the consequences of political mismanagement. For any meaningful progress, the finance minister must not only focus on numbers and reforms but also on restoring faith in the system itself—an uphill battle, but one crucial to Pakistan's economic future.

Real reform demands more than words—it requires a fundamental change in governance, a clear break from the political chaos of the past. Without that, Aurangzeb's promises will be just another spin in an endless cycle of unmet expectations.

Injustice Prevails In Central Jail Hyderabad: Sub-Inspector Muneer Allegedly Exploiting Prisoners

By GM Chandio

HYDERABAD: Alarming reports have emerged from Central Jail Hyderabad, where Sub-Inspector Muneer is allegedly acting as the defacto superintendent, imposing illegal fees and exploiting prisoners. According to multiple sources, including a death-row inmate, Ali Hassan Chandio, Muneer is accused of robbing half of the goods brought by prisoners' relatives and levying excessive charges for basic jail facilities.

Inmates have reported that Sub-Inspector Muneer charges prisoners for the malfunctioning of essential utilities such as donkey motors, light bulbs, and other items, which should be maintained by the prison administration. Those who resist paying these illegal fees are subject to physical punishment by a group of inmates allegedly loyal to Muneer.

Speaking to The Regional Times, Ali Hassan Chandio, who has been imprisoned for 10 years on what he claims are politically motivated charges, shared a grim account of life inside the jail. "We are treated like animals. Basic human facilities are denied to us, and anyone who speaks out is brutally punished," Chandio lamented.

He explained that except for a select few prisoners, favored by Muneer, every inmate is charged exorbitant amounts for basic privileges. Chandio disclosed that prisoners are being asked to pay thousands of rupees for services that should be provided free of cost. "Before Muneer, we were charged 200 rupees per month for cable TV, but now we are forced to pay 800 rupees. If a prisoner wants to have a TV in his cell, the fee is a staggering 30,000 rupees, which is a clear violation of the law."

In addition to these illegal charges, Muneer has allegedly started a Public Call Office (PCO) within the jail, where inmates are charged 50 rupees per minute for phone calls, and an additional 1,500 rupees as an arbitrary fee to make the call.

No talks with PCB over Pakistan players' association: WCA CEO

World Cricketers' Association (WCA) Chief Executive Tom Moffat has clarified that the cricketers' association is not involved in any discussions regarding the formation of a players' association in Pakistan.

In a recent interview with Cricket Pakistan, Moffat emphasized that the decision to establish a players' association is solely in the hands of the Pakistan players and the Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB).

While the WCA maintains regular dialogue with various stakeholders in world cricket, the topic of a players' association in Pakistan has not been a focal point of their discussions with the PCB.

"We engage with various stakeholders in world cricket, including administrators around the world," Moffat stated.

"Our discussions with PCB have focused on potential collaboration and various areas in which we may be able to align and work together, and there has been no discussion on forming a players' association in Pakistan. A players' association with prominent Pakistani figures like Sana Mir, a member of the WCA Board, and Imran Ahmad Khan, the head of Apex Sports.

"Pakistan is an important cricket country with an amazing history and we want to ensure we can help players and support the game there wherever possible," Moffat said. "We have always had a good relationship with the PCB around the PSL, and hope that the relationship only continues to strengthen and grow."

"We already work closely with Sana Mir, who is on our Board, and Apex Sports led by Imran Ahmad Khan, both of whom have great experience in a range of areas. We look forward to more regular contact with the PCB and other important stakeholders," he concluded. —Agency

Robert Sanchez addresses mistakes after Chelsea's win over Brighton

Chelsea extended their unbeaten run in the Premier League with a 4-2 win against Brighton & Hove Albion, but goalkeeper Robert Sanchez came under scrutiny for mistakes that led to both of Brighton's goals.

Brighton's Georginio Rutter opened the scoring after Sanchez rushed off his line, leaving space for Rutter to capitalize on the error. The Seagulls' second goal came when Sanchez mistakenly passed the ball to Brighton's Carlos Baleba, who raced through to score.

Despite these mistakes, Sanchez redeemed himself with several strong saves throughout the match, helping Chelsea maintain their lead. After the game, Sanchez took to Instagram to address his performance, stating, "Mistakes happen - we're all human, except the legend Cole Palmer. Thank you fans.... This group can achieve big things together! One day I help, the next day they help me, this is how we grow as a team."

Sanchez's statistics for the match include four saves, four successful rumouts, and a 71% passing accuracy. He also completed four out of 18 long balls and made one critical error leading to a goal. Despite the pressure, Sanchez remains trusted by Chelsea manager Enzo Maresca, who is unlikely to drop him ahead of a busy schedule with European and domestic cup fixtures on the horizon.

Sanchez reassured fans that he's in peak physical condition, saying he feels the fittest he has been in two years, which should benefit the team during this demanding period. —Agency

Israel strikes Houthi targets in Yemen after killing Hezbollah leader in Lebanon

Israel said it bombed Houthi targets in Yemen on Sunday, expanding its confrontation with Iran's allies in the region after killing the Hezbollah leader Sayyed Hassan Nasrallah on Friday in an escalating conflict in Lebanon. The airstrikes on Yemen's port of Hodeidah were in response to Houthi missile attacks on Israel in recent days, Israel said, amid fears that Middle East fighting could spin out of control and draw in Iran and Israel's main ally the United States.

The strikes took place as Israel attacked more targets in Lebanon, where its intensifying bombardment over two weeks has killed a string of top Hezbollah leaders and driven hundreds of thousands of people from their homes. Lebanon's Health Ministry said Israeli strikes on Sunday had killed 24 people in Ain Deleb in the south and 21 people in Baalbek-Hermel in the east and that 14 medics had been killed in airstrikes over the past two days. Israeli drones hovered over Beirut overnight and for much of Sunday, with the loud blasts of new airstrikes echoing around the Lebanese capital. Hezbollah and Israel have been trading fire across the border since the start of the war in Gaza, which was triggered by the Oct. 7 attack by Hamas militants. Yemen's Houthis have launched sporadic attacks on Israel throughout that time and disrupted Red Sea shipping. Israel rapidly ramped up its attacks on Hezbollah two weeks ago with the declared goal of making northern areas safe for residents to return to their homes, killing much of the group's leadership.—Agency

170 dead in Nepal floods after relentless monsoon rains

KATHMANDU: Residents of Nepal's flood-hit capital returned to their mud-caked homes on Sunday to survey the wreckage of devastating floods that have killed at least 170 people across the Himalayan republic. Deadly rain-related floods and landslides are common across South Asia during the monsoon season from June to September, but experts say climate change is increasing their frequency and severity. Entire neighbourhoods in Kathmandu were inundated over the weekend with flash floods reported in rivers coursing through the capital and extensive damage to highways connecting the city with the rest of Nepal.

KATHMANDU: Residents of Nepal's flood-hit capital returned to their mud-caked homes on Sunday to survey the wreckage of devastating floods that have killed at least 170 people across the Himalayan republic.

Home minister spokesman Rishi Ram Tiwari told AFP that bulldozers were being used to clear several highways that had been blocked by debris, cutting Kathmandu off from the rest of the country. "More than 3,000 people have been rescued," he added. At least 36 of those killed were aboard three vehicles and were buried alive when earth from a landslide careened into a highway south of Kathmandu, Nepal Police spokesman Dan Bahadur Karki told AFP.

The valley in which the capital sits recorded 240mm (9.4 inches) of rain in the 24 hours to Saturday morning, the country's weather bureau told the Kathmandu Post newspaper. It was the highest rainfall recorded in Kathmandu since at least 1970, the report said.—Agency

FBR Expected To Extend Deadline For Tax Return Submissions

ISLAMABAD: The Federal Bureau of Revenue (FBR) is likely to extend the deadline for the submission of tax returns following the meeting of Chief of Army Staff (COAS) General Asim Munir with the business community in Karachi, media reported on Sunday citing sources.

Sources within the FBR say that the deadline for filing income tax returns for the year 2023-24 is likely to be extended by 15 days for individuals, associations of persons, businessmen and companies.

Public Relations (ISPR) said in a statement on Friday. President of the Federation of Pakistan Chambers of Commerce and Industry (FPCCI) Atif Ikram has also requested FBR Chairman Rashid Mahmood Langriyal and his team to extend the returns filing date to October 15. Ikram said that he was in constant contact with the FBR on his suggestion and noted that the last date for filing annual tax returns for individuals should be extended to October 15 so that maximum tax returns could be filed and difficulties faced by taxpayers could be eased. Meanwhile, FBR sources say that its offices will remain open on Sunday and Monday and banks and tax offices will collect tax returns till 8pm on Monday and ensure that no citizen misses out on filing tax returns.—RT/Agency

The development comes after the tax authority, last week, ruled out any extension by the September 30 deadline. "Historically, a facility used to be given [to the masses] by extending the overall deadline. However, this time the decision has been made that the date [for submission of tax returns] will not be extended and September 30 will be the last date to file tax returns," FBR spokesperson Bakhtiar Muhammad had said while speaking to media.

However, the tax body is mulling extending the deadline after the business community, during their meeting with the army chief, suggested that the FBR should create convenience for businessmen instead of difficulties. The meeting in question refers to COAS General Munir's Karachi visit wherein he interacted with the business community and hailed their contributions towards the country's economic growth, the Inter-Services

Let's WASH Out Dengue And Chikungunya

By Kashif Shamim Siddiqui

Dengue and chikungunya have emerged as significant health concerns in Karachi, particularly in the city's slum areas. Poor living conditions in these communities leave residents increasingly vulnerable to these viral diseases. Many individuals in these slums grapple daily with poverty and lack access to essential health and sanitation services. As a result, many remain unaware of the risks posed by viral infections or the preventive measures available to them. However, some community members recognize the urgent need for action to protect lives.

outbreaks. In addition to improving sanitation, WASH Committees will lead awareness campaigns within the community. These initiatives will educate residents about disease prevention, recognizing dengue symptoms, proper waste disposal, and the importance of a clean environment. Acting as a bridge between the community and health officials, these committees will ensure that vital health information reaches everyone, particularly those in marginalized areas who may lack access to such resources. WASH Committees do more than just clean; they empower communities to take charge of their health. Their work fosters a culture of hygiene and preventive care, reducing the community's dependence on external assistance and equipping them to face health challenges independently. By nurturing a sense of ownership and responsibility, WASH Committees will lay the groundwork for long-term health improvements in Karachi's slums. In the ongoing struggle against dengue and other viral diseases, WASH Committees provide a well-organized and sustained approach to sanitation and hygiene. Their efforts extend beyond individual actions, positioning them as key players in maintaining a healthy environment that helps prevent disease transmission. The success of these committees will be essential in fostering healthier, more resilient communities in the city's slums.

Karachi is a vast city with numerous residents living in overcrowded slums that often lack basic amenities, such as clean water and effective waste management systems. Stagnant water is a prevalent issue in these neighborhoods, providing ideal breeding grounds for mosquitoes that transmit dengue and chikungunya. Poor sanitation exacerbates ongoing health challenges, making it difficult for residents to prioritize their health amid financial struggles. This situation underscores the need for community-driven solutions that address both immediate health risks and the underlying issues that contribute to them. While general precautions—such as eliminating stagnant water, using mosquito nets, and applying repellents—are essential, they only provide temporary relief. Sustainable change requires organized, community-led efforts. This is where Water, Sanitation, and Hygiene (WASH) Committees become vital. These committees empower communities to understand the risks and actively enhance sanitation and hygiene practices to mitigate the spread of diseases like dengue.

WASH Committees will spearhead community cleanup drives to eliminate waste and stagnant water, which attract mosquitoes. They will also regularly assess sanitation conditions in their neighborhoods. By maintaining communication with local authorities, these committees will promptly report sanitation issues, ensuring that necessary resources are allocated to uphold hygiene standards. Their ongoing efforts are crucial in the battle against viral Ghani made this statement during a reception at a banquet hall on Sunday, celebrating the integration of the Pashtoon Quami Movement (PQM) into the PPP, led by Chairman Dawood Jan. He emphasized that the establishment of a new constitutional court aligns with the PPP's election manifesto and is also a component of the Charter of Democracy signed with the Pakistan Muslim League (Nawaz) in 2006.

Police Clash With Protesters In Karachi During Nationwide Demonstrations Following Nasrallah's Killing

KARACHI: Police deployed tear gas and protesters responded with stones on Sunday evening in Karachi during a rally that was part of widespread demonstrations across the country condemning Israel's killing of Hezbollah leader Hassan Nasrallah and its ongoing bombing campaign in Lebanon.

In Karachi, a substantial crowd, including women and children, gathered to denounce the killing of the Hezbollah chief, chanting slogans against Israel and its long-time ally, the United States.

Thousands joined the protests nationwide after Hezbollah confirmed on Saturday that Nasrallah had been killed in an Israeli airstrike in Lebanon, as reported by AFP. Tel Aviv acknowledged conducting an airstrike in the southern suburbs of Beirut the previous day, marking a significant setback for the group amid escalating Israeli attacks.

According to the Karachi Police, the rally was organized by the religio-political party Majlis Wahdat Muslimen (MWM). The protest was set to start at the PIDC intersection, progressing towards Mai Kolachi Road via the ICI Bridge, and concluding at the US Consulate.

However, several protesters began their march from the Old Numash roundabout along MA Jinnah Road. When they attempted to approach the US consulate after descending from the Native Jetty Bridge, police stationed there prevented them from advancing.

The police had already established barriers and containers on MT Khan Road and Mai Kolachi Road to block access to the consulate. Tensions escalated when protesters attempted to dismantle these obstacles, leading to clashes.

Social media footage captured clouds of tear gas as protesters gathered near Bahria Complex on MT Khan Road, west of the consulate, waving Hezbollah flags and shouting slogans, while some were seen throwing stones at riot-equipped police.—RT/Agency
