Hezbollah Confirms Assassination Of Nasrallah's Potential Successor By Israel

BEITUR: Hezbollah confirmed on Wednesday that Israel killed Hashem Safieddine, the apparent successor of its slain leader Hassan Nasrallah, in a strike, without saying when or where it happened. The announcement came a day after Israel said he was killed along with other Hezbollah leaders in an air strike in Beirut's southern suburbs three weeks ago. "We mourn... the head of the Executive Council of Hezbollah, his eminence the scholar Sayyed Hashem Safieddine," the group said in a statement, adding he was killed by "a criminal and aggressive Zionist raid" alongside other Hezbollah fighters. The deeply religious Safieddine, a cleric with family ties to Nasrallah, had been widely viewed as the most likely candidate for the party's top job after the assassination of Nasrallah on September 27 in a huge Israeli air strike on Beirut's southern suburbs. Safieddine, a member of the group's governing Shura Council, had strong ties to Iran after undergoing religious studies in Iran's holy city of Qom. The United States and Saudi Arabia had put him on their respective lists of designated "terrorists" in 2017. Last week, Israel claimed to have killed Hamas chief Yahya Sinwar in Gaza. Sinwar was tracked by an Israeli mini drone as he lay dying in the ruins of a building in southern Gaza, which filmed him slumped in a chair covered in dust, according to a video released by Israeli authorities.—RT/Agency

Ankara Under Siege: Four Dead, 14 Injured In Attack On Turkish Aerospace Industries HQ

ANKARA: Four people were killed and 14 others wounded in an attack at the Turkish Aerospace Industries' headquarters on Wednesday, the government said, and witnesses said they heard gunfire and a loud explosion at the site near Ankara. Turkish Interior Minister Ali Yerlikaya said two attackers were killed in what he called a terrorist attack, adding three of the injured are in critical condition. TV broadcasters earlier showed footage of armed assailants entering the TUSAS building.

President Tayyip Erdogan, alongside Russia's Vladimir Putin at a BRICS conference in the Russian city of Kazan, also called it a terrorist attack. The cause and perpetrators of the blast and subsequent gunfire remained unclear. No group had claimed responsibility. Prosecutors have launched an investigation, state-run Anadolu Agency reported. Some media reports claimed a suicide attack had occurred and that there were hostages inside the building, though officials have not confirmed this. Witnesses told Reuters that employees inside the building were taken by authorities to shelters and no one was permitted to leave for a few hours. They said the blasts they heard may have taken place at different exits as employees were leaving work for the day. Broadcasters showed images of a damaged gate and footage of an exchange of gunfire in a parking lot, as well as attackers carrying assault rifles and backpacks as they entered the building. Ambulances and helicopters later arrived. TUSAS is Turkey's largest aerospace manufacturer, currently producing a training craft, combat and civilian helicopters, as well as developing the country's first indigenous fighter jet, KAAAN. Owned by the Turkish Armed Forces Foundation and government, it employs more than 10,000 people.—RT/Agency

Justice Hasan Rizvi Issues Critical Additional Note On NAB Amendments Case

ISLAMABAD: Supreme Court Justice Hasan Azhar Rizvi issued an additional note on the NAB review case, expressing concerns about the majority judgment. While Justice Rizvi concurred with the overall verdict, he noted that he was not fully convinced by the reasoning provided by the majority bench, stating that the original claim lacked sufficient justification. In his note, Justice Rizvi also took issue with certain remarks made in the judgement regarding former judges, emphasizing that judicial dissents should be expressed with civility to preserve the dignity of the institution. He stressed that criticism should focus on the legal principles of the decision, rather than ridiculing the individuals behind it. In addition, Justice Rizvi clarified that he wrote his separate reasons to ensure that the discourse remained respectful and principled. He further pointed out that the intra-court appeal under the Supreme Court's Practice and Procedure Law differs from traditional appeals, as it allows for a re-examination of the court's findings. In September, the Supreme Court approved the intra-court appeals while delivering its verdict on the NAB amendment case.—RT/Agency

PTI Cracks Down On Defiance, Issues Show-Cause Notices To Zain Qureshi And Others

ISLAMABAD: Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) has issued show-cause notices to party members Zain Qureshi, Riyaz Fatyana, Aslam Ghuman, and Miqdad Ali Khan for violation of party instructions ahead of the passage of the 26th Constitutional Amendment in the Parliament House. In its show-cause notice to the lawmakers, issued by the party's central secretariat on Tuesday, PTI said it had directed all its members of the National Assembly and Senate to remain safe, secure, and not to be in touch with anyone for or on behalf of the government for the purpose of the constitutional tweaks. The party's notices were issued two days after the ruling coalition government-backed 26th Constitutional Amendments were passed in both the upper and lower house of the parliament—the process of which began on Sunday evening and ended in the morning hours on Monday (October 21).

During the vote on the contentious amendments brought forth by the administration of Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif, strongly opposed by the PTI, the government secured 225 votes, surpassing the required 224, with support from a handful of independent MNAs, including members of the Imran Khan-founded party. Zain Qureshi, Aurangzeb Khichi, Usman Ali and Mubarak Zeb were the PTI-backed independent MNAs who voted in the tweak's favour, while Pakistan Muslim League-Quaid (PML-Q)'s Chaudhry Ilyas also supported the legislation. Meanwhile, Zain was in communication since October 16 and his video regarding his status began circulating on October 21 following the passage of the legal reforms. On the other hand, PTI Opposition Leader Omar Ayub claimed about the lawmaker's wife being arrested from her house, Miqdad Ali being disappeared twice. Ghuman, too, was not in contact with the party both before and during the legislative process. "These instructions were issued to every MNA and Senator in order to avoid, not only harassment but also to be in touch with the party or its authorized representative for further instructions in the aforesaid matter," read the notices. In the separate notices to all four lawmakers, the party maintained that each of them had the instruction and directions communicated to them. "Needless to add that you were bound to follow these party directions and instructions, including the direction to be at the designated location, and those abroad not to come to Pakistan till further instruction, and not to be in communication with anyone for or on behalf of the Government for the purpose of the 26th constitutional amendment," it added. However, it further read, the members left the designated location, and you avoided contact with the party or its authorized persons in the several days leading up to the vote in "disregard of the aforesaid directions and instructions". "We have been provided with credible evidence and statements from reliable sources that you had full intention of defecting in case your vote was needed," the letter stated. The party has, therefore, asked the lawmakers to respond to the notice within seven days, explaining why they should not be declared to have defected from the party and/or that "you have violated the party instructions, thus liable to be expelled from the Party forthwith." "Should you fail to respond to this notice, it would be assumed that you have nothing to say in your defense and you will be proceeded against without further notice, including expulsion from the party," read the notice.—RT/Agency

Four Hindu families leave Kashmir for India

By Aftab Bhatti

KASHMIRE: The recent wave of unrest and a troubling rise in criminal activities have compelled four Hindu families to make the difficult decision to leave Kashmir for India permanently. This migration comes on the heels of several high-profile incidents of abduction and robbery that have instilled fear within the local community.

Among those departing is Sagar Kumar, who experienced a harrowing ordeal just months ago when he was kidnapped by robbers. His release came after a historic protest at Dera Mor, a pivotal intersection of three provinces, where community members rallied to demand his freedom, ultimately resulting in the payment of a substantial ransom.

Today, Sagar Kumar has cited the deteriorating security situation in Kashmir and persistent fears of re-abduction as primary reasons for his departure. His decision reflects a broader trend of insecurity felt by many residents in the region, leading to disappointment and distress within the local Hindu community, which has deep historical ties to the area.

The departure of these families highlights urgent concerns regarding safety and the need for effective measures to combat the escalating culture of violence and crime in the district.

Community leaders and activists are calling for increased protection and support for minority communities facing such threats.

The United Nations: A Failing Guardian Of Global Peace?

By Niaz Ali Janwri

Throughout history, treaties and organizations have been established to promote peace and harmony across the world. Early examples include the Treaty of Hudaibiyyah and the Charter of Madina, both initiated by the Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) to maintain peace and coexistence between Muslims and non-Muslims. These early agreements set a precedent that later influenced the founding charters of modern organizations, such as the League of Nations and the United Nations (UN).

The UN was formed on October 24, 1945, following the failure of the League of Nations, which was unable to prevent World War II. The UN's primary goal was to maintain global peace, ensure security, and foster cooperation among nations. Member states pledged to resolve disputes peacefully and avoid interfering in each other's affairs. The UN Security Council was given the authority to enforce peace, with provisions in Chapters 6 and 7 of the UN Charter dedicated to resolving conflicts. However, the effectiveness of the UN has come under scrutiny, especially concerning its response to conflicts involving Muslim-majority countries. Recent events, particularly the ongoing crisis in Gaza, have highlighted perceived biases and failures within the organization. Despite its mandate to uphold peace, the UN has been criticized for inaction and for appearing powerless, especially as Secretary-General Antonio Guterres has struggled to address the crisis effectively. Many believe the UN has not adequately addressed the plight of Palestinian Muslims, leading to accusations of bias and double standards. The ongoing suffering of Palestinians, coupled with what some view as UN indifference, has eroded confidence in the organization's ability to fulfill its founding mission. As the world marks UN Day on October 24, it raises a critical question: Can the United Nations truly be seen as a successful guardian of peace, or has it become an institution that falls short when needed most?

Polio's Resurgence Demands A Constitutional Amendment Also!

The recent surge in polio cases in Pakistan is a stark reminder of a persistent health crisis that has yet to be fully addressed. The confirmation of the 40th polio case this year, involving a child from Kohat, is deeply alarming. With new cases emerging in Sindh, Balochistan, and Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, the virus has shown its ability to persist, threatening to undo years of progress. The presence of the virus in sewage samples further highlights the urgency of a nationwide effort to close immunity gaps.

The government has recently demonstrated its ability to mobilize and act decisively, as seen in the swift passage of the 26th Constitutional Amendment. It is now time for the same sense of urgency and determination to be applied to polio eradication. The upcoming nationwide vaccination drive is a step in the right direction, aiming to immunize over 4.5 million children across the country. However, this must be part of a broader, more sustained effort that includes enhanced coordination with neighboring countries, better management, and thorough oversight.

Pakistan's struggle against polio is not just about administering vaccines; it involves tackling structural issues like poor sanitation, misin-formation, and vaccine hesitancy. The presence of poliovirus in environmental samples underscores the need for improvements in basic health infrastructure.

Education campaigns must also continue to dispel myths about vaccines, especially in regions like KP, where reluctance to immunize children remains a significant barrier.

Pakistan cannot afford to lose this battle. The government's resolve in passing crucial legislation shows that rapid, decisive action is possible. Now, the same energy must be directed towards achieving a polio-free future. Only through a holistic, persistent approach can Pakistan finally eradicate this crippling disease.

White-Ball Captaincy Fate Hinges On Crucial Naqvi-Rizwan Meeting: Rashid Latif

KARACHI: Former Pakistan wicketkeeper Rashid Latif has revealed that the national team's white-ball captaincy will be determined following a crucial meeting between PCB Chairman Zaka Ashraf and wicketkeeper-batter Mohammad Rizwan. Latif shared this update on social media, stating that the decision, which has been delayed due to Naqvi's absence from the country, will soon be finalised. "The decision regarding the captaincy for ODIs and T20s will be made after a meeting between the PCB chairman and Mohammad Rizwan," Latif posted, hinting at Rizwan as the frontrunner for the leadership role. The captaincy position has been uncertain since Babar's resignation on October 2. Babar's departure came after a series of leadership changes within Pakistan cricket, including his earlier resignation as all-format captain under former PCB Chairman Zaka Ashraf. At that time, Shan Masood took over the red-ball team, and Shaheen Afridi was handed the T20 captaincy. However, Babar was reinstated as the white-ball captain ahead of the 2024 T20 World Cup during Naqvi's tenure as PCB chairman. With Babar now stepping aside from white-ball leadership, Rizwan and Mohammad Harris have emerged as the main candidates for the captaincy. Rizwan is believed to be the likely successor to lead the team in both formats. The Pakistan Cricket Board is expected to announce the squads for the upcoming white-ball tours of Australia and Zimbabwe within the next few days. —Agency

In addition to their dominance with sixes, Zimbabwe equaled the record for the most fours in a T20I innings, hitting 30 boundaries, a record previously set by Sri Lanka in a match against Kenya in 2007. The team amassed 282 runs from boundaries, surpassing the previous highest of 216 set by Punjab against Andhra in India's domestic Syed Mushtaq Ali Trophy. In T20Is, the previous record for amassing most runs from boundaries was 212, created by Nepal, against Mongolia, in Asian Games match. Pakistan Shaheens Surge Into Semi-Finals With Commanding 74-Run Victory Over UAE

AL-AMERAT: Pakistan Shaheens progressed to the semi-finals after defeating United Arab Emirates (UAE) by 74 runs in a virtual quarter-final of the ACC Emerging Team T20 Asia Cup on Wednesday. The UAE was bundled out by Mohammad Harris and Co at 65 runs in 16.3 overs. Earlier, Harris, leading his side from the front, scored a rapid 71 off 49 runs to help his side post a 180-run target against UAE. Harris, who demoted himself in the batting order following back-to-back failures as an opener, smoked six boundaries and three maximums and remained not out at till the end. Omair Bin Yousuf, after Shaheens opted to bat first, opened the innings alongside Yasir Khan. The first 21 runs of the opening innings were fired by Omair after which he was unlucky to get run-out. Harris came in and joined Yasir at the crease who then gave confidence to his skipper while hitting a couple of hits out of the park. Muhammad Farooq, the leggie, cleverly bowled to Yasir who tried to play with the spin but failed to clear the long-on boundary. UAE skipper Rahul Chopra took a stunning catch running backward which also saw him falling where the back of his head was hit hard on the ground. He was taken off the field for a while. Meanwhile, Shaheens' skipper went berserk on the opposition bowlers with his traditional cheeky style. Qasim Akram, who sailed the ship of Shaheens in the match against Oman, managed just 23 runs. Whereas, Haider, who returned after resting in the previous match, proved his worth this time by scoring 32 off 17 balls including a boundary and three maximums. —Agency

David Warner Eyes Test Comeback, Declares Himself Ready For Action

MULTAN: The former Australian opener David Warner expressed willingness to play against India in the five-match Test series, scheduled to start from November 22. Speaking to the Code Sports, he stated: "I'm always available, just got to pick up the phone. I'm always dead serious. Honestly, if they really needed myself for this series, I'm more than happy to play the next Shield game and go out there and play." It is worth noting here that the 37-year-old Warner announced his retirement from the red-ball format following three-match Test series against Pakistan late last year. Despite bidding farewell, the veteran mentioned that he would be willing to showcase his skills for his domestic side, New South Wales in the Sheffield Shield. In addition, the former Test vice-captain retired last summer after scoring 8,786 runs and 26 centuries, including a career-best 335 not out. Reflecting on his excitement, Warner said he messaged Australia's head coach and chief selector to include him in the squad for the In-Reasons to finish the game, and I wanted to finish. But my hand is up if they desperately need someone. I'm not going to shy away from that," Warner said, adding that he had cheekily messaged both Australia's head coach Andrew McDonald and chief selector George Bailey about the situation. "I've spoken to Torch (McDonald) and his answer back to me was, 'you retired,'" Warner laughed. "I don't think he wants to give me the pleasure of him saying, 'can you come back?'" Meanwhile, the Baggy Greens are looking for a capable opener batter for the series as Steve Smith has returned to his usual spot at four after Warner's retirement. —Agency

Jason Gillespie Speaks Out: 'I Am A Matchday Strategist' Amid Selection Snub

LAHORE: Pakistan red-ball head coach Jason Gillespie has opened up about his role in the team management after the recent changes in the selection committee. Previously head coach and captain of the respective formats were part of the selection committee as voting members. However, following Pakistan's heavy defeat in the first Test against England, the Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB) overhauled the selection committee, removing the captain and coach from the selection process. "The Pakistan Cricket Board [PCB] has confirmed the reconstitution of the men's national selection committee. It now includes Aleem Dar, match. It was decided that a new selection panel would come in, and they would be making decisions," said Gillespie. "I was not involved in the decision-making. I'm now just the coach for England, so I just keep out of things now and just focus on the players and getting them ready for cricket." The former Australian pacer stated that he is only focused on creating team strategy and has nothing to do with the team selection. "Look, it's not for me to talk about now. I am not a selector; I am a matchday strategist as head coach, and I'm all about the players," he added. "My focus is on them. I will let the selectors do their job, and we will just go out there and play the best cricket we can possibly play." It's worth noting that Pakistan has announced an unchanged playing XI for the third Test, while England have added an additional spinner to take advantage of the conditions. —Agency

Nicole Kidman's Shocking Admission: 'Don't Touch Me'

In Babygirl, Nicole Kidman had to pause the shooting because she could not control herself in racy scenes. Dishing about those x-rated moments, she told The Sun ahead of the film's release that the erotic movie directed by Halina Reijn had scores of steamy scenes, which, in her words, physically frustrated her. "There was an enormous amount of sharing and trust and then frustration. It's like, 'Don't touch me,'" adding the exhaustion from the process had her like, "Come near me. I hate doing this. I don't care if I am never touched again in my life! I'm over it." "It was so present all the time for me that it was almost like a burnout." She continued, "There were times when we were shooting where I was like, 'I don't want to  anymore.'" Making this kind of film, which involved an extra amount of touching, required a lot of trust between actors and their directors. So, in Nicole's case, she said her experience was good because of a female filmmaker. "There's a sort of a jump off the cliff thing where you go, okay, I'm just going to abandon everything and explore this with the people that I trust in a genre that is already set, but hopefully we can explore new territory and especially with the female at the helm."

Kylie Jenner Opens Up About Timothée Chalamet Romance And Renewed Friendship With Jordyn Woods

Kylie Jenner has opened up on why she keeps her romantic life with actor Timothée Chalamet private. During a new interview with Elle, Kylie made a brief comment on the subject without naming the Dune star. She said, "I think it's important to keep things to yourself. It's hard for me to make a decision by myself sometimes, so the opinion of the whole world... it can be tough." Elsewhere in the interview, she also revealed more about her friendship with Jordyn Woods, who was accused of kissing Tristan Thompson when he was with Khloe Kardashian. "I was heartbroken," the Khy founder said of the aftermath of the scandal. "We've always tried to talk through things, so it's never been a full cold-turkey cut-off; it was needed distance. Anytime something happened, good or bad, and I needed to call someone, it would always be her. To lose that person felt really lonely, but I had to go through that." "I learned so much, gained so much independence, and was there for myself. It helped me grow up a little bit, because we were so attached at the hip. I think that in order for us both to grow, she needed to spread her wings and do what she needed to do as well," Kylie reflected. Kylie Jenner and Timothée Chalamet first ignited rumors of a relationship in April 2023, when her car was seen outside his home multiple times. They went public in September the same year at a Beyoncé concert.

Local contractor criticizes tender irregularities

By Naeem Ahmed Shaikh

KHAIRPUR: In a bold move, prominent contractor Zaheer Jumani has publicly criticized the Secretary of Education for allegedly favoring large contractors in the awarding of tenders aimed at repairing government schools that were damaged by recent floods. Jumani raised concerns over the recent tender requirements that have been adjusted to accept only C3 category contractors, whereas traditionally, C5 contractors are necessary for such projects.

During a press conference, Jumani emphasized that this shift in criteria not only undermines the quality of work expected but also violates a Sindh High Court ruling that mandates the separation of tenders for civil and electrical work. "By ignoring these regulations, the Secretary is not only compromising the integrity of the tender process but also sidelining local contractors who could effectively carry out the repairs," he stated. Jumani called for the rejection of the current tenders and urged the Sindh High Court, Chief Minister, and Chief Secretary to intervene to ensure a fair and transparent process for local contractors. He warned that if the situation remains unaddressed, he will be forced to consider legal action to protect the interests of local businesses.
