Border Breakthrough: Pak-Afghan Border Reopens After Days of Tense Standoff

ISLAMABAD: In a promising turn of events, the Pakistan-Afghanistan border is set to reopen within the next 24 to 48 hours, diplomatic sources have confirmed. This development comes after a tense period of hostilities that saw the border closed, disrupting vital trade and travel between the two neighboring nations.

Officials from both countries have reportedly agreed to reopen the crucial Torkham crossing, following intense negotiations. Pakistan's officials stated that the border will remain closed only as long as no further disputes arise. The resumption of the crossing is expected to ease the strain on commerce, travel, and humanitarian exchanges. The border closure followed a dramatic escalation in tensions when Taliban militants, along with allied groups, launched a series of coordinated attacks on Pakistani border posts overnight from October 11 to 12, 2025. The assault was met with a swift and decisive response from the Pakistan Army, which successfully repelled the attackers and inflicted heavy losses on the militant groups. The Inter-Services Public Relations (ISPR) revealed that the assault was an unprovoked act of aggression, allegedly orchestrated by the Afghan Taliban in collaboration with the Indian-backed militant group, Fatah al-Khawarij.—RT/Agency

'No room for hatred, terrorism', affirms PM Shehbaz

ISLAMABAD: Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif affirmed on Monday that there was no place for hatred, chaos, or terrorism in Pakistan, as he extended Diwali greetings to the Hindu community. Addressing an event at the Prime Minister's House to celebrate the Diwali festival, PM Shehbaz acknowledged the contributions and services of all communities towards Pakistan. PM Shehbaz stated that the presence of representatives from diverse communities at the event reflected "the ideals of Pakistan as envisioned by its founding father, Quaid-i-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah". Senior religious and diplomatic figures, members of minority communities and parliamentary representatives attended the special ceremony. The prime minister emphasised that people from all communities stand united for the nation's progress and to "thwart any nefarious designs" against the motherland. All citizens enjoy equal rights and freedoms in Pakistan, he said, adding that the event reflected "the living reality of Pakistan's pluralism."

PM Shehbaz also reaffirmed the nation's unwavering support for the security forces as they continue their fight to defeat the menace of terrorism. The prime minister said that Pakistan's Muslim majority has always shown strong anger toward "any despicable acts against minority communities", standing in unwavering solidarity during such times. He also highlighted key government initiatives aimed at safeguarding minority rights and fostering interfaith harmony, including the representation of all minority communities in the parliament, a 5% job quota, and scholarships for minority students, among others.—RT/Agency

Khamenei Defiant: Iran Rejects Trump's Offer, Dismisses US Claims of Nuclear Strike

DUBAI: Iranian Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei on Monday rejected an offer of renewed talks from US President Donald Trump and denied his assertion that the United States has destroyed Iran's nuclear capabilities. Tehran and Washington engaged in five rounds of indirect nuclear negotiations that ended with the 12-day air war in June in which Israel and the US bombed Iranian nuclear sites. Trump says he is a dealmaker, but if a deal is accompanied by coercion and its outcome is predetermined, it is not a deal but rather an imposition and bullying," Khamenei said according to state media. Last week, Trump told the Israeli parliament that it would be great if Washington could negotiate a "peace deal" with Tehran, following the start of a ceasefire in Gaza between Israel and Hamas.—RT/Agency

Asked about India's assertion that it was not aware of any conversation between Modi and Trump, one of the main irritants Trump replied: "But if they want to say that, then trade talks with India—they'll just continue to pay massive tariffs, and they don't want to do that." Russian oil has been

Pakistan Soars to New Heights: HS-1 Launch Marks a Glorious Leap into the Space Age with Iron Brother China by Its Side

A moment of immense national pride has dawned upon Pakistan. The successful launch of the country's first Hyperspectral Satellite (HS-1) from China is nothing short of a historic milestone—an extraordinary technological leap that propels Pakistan into the elite club of space-faring nations mastering advanced hyperspectral imaging.

This monumental achievement by SUPARCO showcases the brilliance, resilience, and sheer capability of Pakistani scientists and engineers, whose dedication has once again made the green crescent shine brightly among the stars. HS-1 is not just a satellite—it is a symbol of vision, innovation, and the unyielding quest for progress. With its ultra-precise imaging across hundreds of spectral bands, HS-

1 will revolutionize agriculture, environmental monitoring, urban planning, and disaster management. From predicting floods to mapping soil fertility, the satellite's data will empower Pakistan to manage its resources with unmatched precision and foresight.

This triumph is also a glowing testament to the iron-clad Pakistan-China friendship—a bond that grows stronger with every challenge and achievement. China's unwavering support and technological partnership have once again proven that this all-weather friendship knows no bounds. Together, both nations have shown the world what true strategic cooperation can achieve, leaving envious rivals restless and speechless.

Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif rightly hailed the launch as a pivotal moment for Pakistan's future—a step forward in combating climate change, boosting food security, and fostering sustainable development. As the HS-1 begins its journey in orbit, it carries not only the hopes of a nation but the promise of a brighter, more self-reliant, and technologically empowered Pakistan.

Truly, Pakistan has reached for the stars—and caught one.

Rain Disrupts Pakistan's World Cup Push, Rameen Shamim Eyes Semi-Final Spot

Pakistan bowler Rameen Shamim expressed frustration on Monday over the weather disruptions ahead of their crucial South Africa ICC Women's World Cup clash on Tuesday. After monsoon rains in Colombo caused washouts in their last two matches against England and New Zealand, Pakistan's hopes of securing vital points have been dashed. The washed-out match against New Zealand on Saturday saw South Africa qualify for the semi-finals, leaving Pakistan still searching for their first win of the tournament. Despite the setbacks, Rameen remained hopeful and determined, saying, "Rain is not in our control. We were performing well against England, and we were looking forward to building on that momentum." The team's semi-final dreams now hinge on a strong performance against South Africa, with Rameen emphasizing the team's focus on doing their best, despite the uncontrollable weather conditions. Pakistan's struggle to find consistency in the tournament has been exacerbated by the washed-out matches, but the team remains resilient and determined to secure their place in the semi-finals. With weather concerns still looming, the match against South Africa is expected to be a make-or-break opportunity for Pakistan's World Cup aspirations.—Agency

China Hits Back: Adopts US-Style Tactics in Escalating Trade War with Washington

WASHINGTON: China likes to condemn the United States for extending its arm too far outside of its borders to make demands on non-American companies. But when it sought to hit back at the US interests this month, Beijing did exactly the same.

In expanding export rules on rare earths, Beijing for the first time announced it will require foreign firms to obtain approval from the Chinese government to export magnets containing even tiny amounts of China-originated rare earth materials, said James Greer, the US trade representative. "This rule gives rean smartphone maker must ask for Beijing's permission to sell the devices to Australia if the phones contain China-originated rare earth materials, said James Greer, the US trade representative. "This rule gives China control over basically the entire global economy in the technology supply chain," he said. For anyone familiar with U.S. trade practice, China is simply borrowing a decades-long U.S. policy: the foreign direct product rule. It extends the reach of U.S. law to foreign-made products, and it has been used regularly to restrict China's access to certain U.S. technologies made outside of the United States, even when they are in the hands of foreign companies.

It is the latest example of Beijing turning to U.S. precedents for tools it needs to stare down Washington in what appears to be an extended trade war between the world's two largest economies.

"China is learning from the best," said Neil Thomas, a fellow on Chinese politics at Asia Society Policy Institute's Center for China Analysis. "Beijing is copying Washington's playbook because it saw firsthand how effectively U.S. export controls could constrain its own economic development and political choices."

He added: "Game recognizes game." It was in 2018, when President Donald Trump launched a trade war with China, that Beijing felt the urgency to adopt a set of laws and policies that it could readily deploy when new trade conflicts arise. And it looked to Washington for ideas.—RT/Agency
