Blind Eyes Show More Vision Than Modi and India's Cricket Team Ever Will

n Sri Lanka, a historic moment unfolded at the world's first blind women's T20 tournament. Pakistani and Indian visually impaired cricketers shook hands, exchanged compliments, and celebrated the spirit of the game — de-spite political tensions, past military clashes, and bitter rivalries. These women, some unable to see the ball they play with, demonstrated more courage, humility, and vision than the so-called leaders of India's cricketing establishment.

Contrast this with Prime Minister Narendra
